No man eat more heartily than Johnson, or loved better what was nice and delicate. Mr. Wilkes was very assiduous in helping him to some fine veal. 'Pray give me leave, Sir ;—it is better here—a little of the brown. Some fat, Sir —a little of the stuffing—some gravy. Let me have the pleasure of giving you some butter. Allow me to recommend a square of this orange ; or the lemon, perhaps, may have some zest.' 'Sir, Sir, I am obliged to you, Sir,' cried Dr. Johnson, bowing and turning his head to him with a look for some time of 'surly virtue,' but, in a short while, of complacency."
